Catalog format [Rarity][Type][Name][Value]

```
[Common][Garmin Intern][Colin][$0.30]

The line above illustrates the format. Every numbered catalog line lists an actual base value. Type titles are fictional variants. Dollar amounts are game values.

250 cards are organized under each home tier. These sections are a catalog index: any card may also appear in another pack when its rarity and full value range qualify. Class coverage is on page 2; probability rules and tables close the document on pages 43-47.

Every person, accounted for.

41 people receive 48 or 49 cards each. First names preserve the supplied spelling.

Roster IDs follow your original list. James (05 and 35) and Ryan (15 and 32) are separate people; their card Types remain distinct. Zackary and Zachary are also distinct.

32 x 49 + 9 x 48 = 2,000

Each numbered card belongs to roster ID 1 + ((card number - 1) mod 41). This gives an explicit allocation for both repeated first names without printing surnames. A different price roll does not create a new card identity.

Uniqueness is checked using Rarity + Type + Name, not the price or catalog number. All 2,000 combinations are distinct.

How the odds are calculated.

100% theoretical return, using the actual card pools and bonus-card drops.

1 Draw the number of cards

Every pack yields one card 95.000000% of the time, two cards 4.500000% of the time, and three cards 0.500000% of the time. The expected number is 0.95 + 2(0.045) + 3(0.005) = 1.055 cards per pack.

2 Use the eligible global pool

For each card draw, choose a rarity using that pack's table, then select uniformly among all 2,000 catalog cards that have that rarity and satisfy 0.85 x base >= pack minimum and 1.15 x base <= pack maximum. Draws are independent, with replacement; a double or triple can repeat a card.

3 Roll a value inside the full envelope

Let b be the card's integer-cent base. Uniformly draw an integer-cent sale value from ceil(0.85b) through floor(1.15b), inclusive. These endpoints sum to 2b, so the expected sale value is exactly the listed base. All outcomes remain inside the advertised pack limits.

4 Solve the rarity weights

Order only the allowed rarities from lowest to highest, indexed r = 0, 1, ... For each pack, set p(r) = q^r / sum(q^j) and numerically solve 1.055 x sum(p(r) x mean base of eligible rarity r) = pack cost. Every solved q is between 0 and 1, so each successive rarity is less likely.

5 Interpret the return correctly

Expected total sale value = pack cost; theoretical house edge = 0%. This includes all bonus cards and assumes every card can be sold at its rolled value with no fees. It is an average across many openings, not a guaranteed break-even pack or run. Keeping cards instead of selling changes cash recovery.

Reading the tables. Odds on pages 44-47 are per card drawn, not the probability that a multi-card pack contains that rarity. An unlisted rarity has 0% chance. Eligible counts include qualifying cards from every home tier. Rarity means are shown to four decimal places; calculations use the unrounded means.

Rarity odds & expected values.

Per card drawn. A dash is unnecessary: rarities absent from a table have 0% odds.

Rounding check: across all eight packs, using the printed odds changes RTP by at most 0.00001920 percentage points. For a rarity with per-card chance p, the chance of at least one in a pack is 1 - [0.95(1-p) + 0.045(1-p)^2 + 0.005(1-p)^3]. Full-precision odds give zero theoretical house edge.
